Masonic Banquet

On Thursday evening last a banquet was given at the Hawaiian Hotel in bonor of the M. W. Grand Master Edmund C. Atkinson and the visiting Masons. The banquet was given by the two local lodges, Hawaiian Lodge No. 21 and Lodge le Progres de l'Oceanie, who were represented by their officers and a number of their leading mem-

Shortly after 8:30 p. m., the M. W. Grand Master entered the hotel parlor and took his station on the east side, having His Majesty ou his left and the Past Masters present grouped on both sides of him, the W. M. of Hawaiian Lodge, J. M. Monsarrat stand-ing a little in front and to the right of the M. W. Grand Master. The officers of both lodges were ranged around the room, according to their rank, the Wardens standing on the south and the deacons on the west side

Past Master Hassinger, well known for his urbanity and thorough knowledge of his duties, acted as master of ceremonies.

The brethren were received at the door by him, and introduced by W. M. Monsarrat to the M. W. Grand Master. The reception over, the company passed into the dining room, where a handsome collation was spread out. At the upper end of the room was an in-scription with the words: "Welcome, Grand Master;" at the other end one reading, "Welcome, Visiting Brethren." Both were framed with fragrant leis, and were the work of Geo. Stratemeyer, who deserves great credit for the artistic manner in which both devices were executed. The Royal Hawaiian Band was in the band stand, and executed a variety of music in their usual manner. A visiting Mason remarked: "We have not the equal of this band in San Francisco.'

W. M. Monsarrat presided at the banquet, having on his right the King and on his left the M. W. Grand Master.

After about an hour spent in refreshing the inner man, W. M. Monsarrat rising said: "Your Majesty and Brethren-We have met here this evening to do honor to a most dis-tinguished guest, the Most Worshipful Edmund C. Atkinson, Grand Master of Masons of California, and also to do honor to the visiting brethren of the Masonic excursion who accompany him. The members of Lodge Le Progres and the Hawaiian Lodge unite with me in extending to you a fraternal greeting. Although Masonry has flourished in this Kingdom during the last thirty-seven years or thereabouts, this is the first occasion in our history upon which the craft have had the honor of receiving a visit from a Grand Master. We deeply appreciate that honor, and I am sure that the members of Hawaiian Lodge and Lodge Le Progres and the other Masons present here this even-ing will unite with me in extending to you a cordial welcome. We are proud to be able to entertain you. Your Majesty and brethren, I give you the health of the Most Worshiptal Grand Master, and will call upon him to respond to the sentiment, 'Freemasoury and the Grand Lodge of California.'"

The toast having been responded to with great enthusiasm, the W. M. Grand Master with the eloquence for which he is well known, responded and said:

"Your Majesty, Brother Master of Cere monies, and Brethren of the Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons—It has been said ATTORNEY AT LAW AND NOTARY PUBLIC, P. DELL TELEFHONE 348. P. O. Box 415. The that there comes a time in the life of every man when the heart swells with emotions which the tongue cannot express. Full well do I know the truth of that saying for I recognize that that time with me is the present. When I take into consideration all the circomstances connected with my visit to the Hawaiian Islands, when I recall the untiring efforts of the officers of the good ship Australia to minister to the comfort and pleasare of myself and those who accompany me, when I remember the very cordial and hospitable reception accorded to our party by the brethren of Honolulu, when I survey the magnificent scene now before me, in the poverty of my language I can find no words adequate to express the sentiments I entertain. I stand before you to utter the simple words 'I thank you;' but simple and plain as those words may seem, I assure you that they come from the depths of a grateful heart. "We meet to-night as brothren of the Mystic Tie, and though our homes are far separate, though oceans have rolled between us, yet when we meet and clasp hands in fra-ternal greeting we feel the influence of that magic vinculum which binds heart to heart and soul to soul. We meet as members of an ancient and honorable order-ancient as having existed from time immemorial, honorable as tending to make all men so who are strictly obedient to the precepts it enjoing, an order whose principles are co-eval with light itself and as old as the hills that look down upon us. "Away back in the dawn of history there existed a brotherhood of builders, who were both operative and speculative masons. They wrought at the building of the Temple of Solomon and the most magnificent structures of the age in which they lived. They dedicated the works of their hands to the preme Grand Master of the Universe and offered up their devotions to the Everliving Rome's five hundred temples, her hundred monuments to the deities, her coliseum, her triumphal arch and her four score gates were the works of their hands. That great military road which led from Rome to Capua, and over which the conquering host of Marius rode-the renowned Appian Way. was built by those ancient masons. And within the last few years there have come from beneath that ancient road excavations bearing upon their surface the symbols of masonry. Those ancient brethren traveled throughout the countries of the east building mosques and monuments, cathedrals and towers. Traces of their early handiwork may still be found from the sunny stopes of France and Italy to the snow-clad hills of Imperial Russia, and still other specimens of lesser magnitude in the ruined castles of the nobility of other days on the Rhine, the Rhoue, the Seine and the Thames, and on the hilly margin of the beautiful blue

Danube Where splendor fall On castle walls

And snowy summits old in story." Of their bandiwork that adorned the y middle ages, a few structures still aw remain untouched by the devastating hand of Time. Westminster Abbey, whose storied walls for centuries have witnessed the coronation of England's kings and kept silent watch over the ashes of her illustrious dead, was built by those ancient Masons. The Cathedrai of Strasbourg, the world's masterpiece of architecture-that great, grand poem telling to the ages the story of man's long endeavor to worship God in the most enduring form that hand could execute or mind conceive-was the work of our ancient brothren. That stupendous edifice, though buffeted by the storms of seven centuries, stands to-day in unapproachable sublimity, and apon its lofty threet-morn still hangs her rosy wreath and eve her crimson veti. But these structures, magnificent as they are, must, like their builders, yield to the ravage of decay; the gnawing tooth of time shall feed upon their substance, and the insatiste ivy shall fatten upon their dust, for "The state liest mansion man can rulee Is the ivy's food at last."

from the face of the earth, the humani-tarian principles which they propagated, the lessons of love which they taught— love to God and man-shall go down the ages, strengthened by the rolling years to guide, protect and bless mankind. To cherish and perpetuate the sublume prin-ciples propagated by ciples propagated by our ancient brethren, and to spread the light which kindled upon their altars is the work of the Grand Lodge of California, and I, as the presiding officer of that grand body, am proud to stand before you to-night and declare that with all the strength that within me lies I will work for the good of our Order, and for the welfare of my fellow men." The speaker again feelingly referred to the bospitalities shown by the brethren of the Hawaiian Islands, and on behalf of the recipients tendered expressions of gratitude. He passed a hand-ome compliment upon

Honolulu in the following terms:
"I shall never forget the sensation which I experienced as our good ship rounded Diamond Head. I was standing upon the hurricane deck with a glass to my eye, and as I beneld your beautiful city nestling among cocanut groves and surrounded by everlasting hills. I recalled the lines of the poet Algorithm Charles Switching. gernon Charles Swinburne:

In a coigne of a cliff between lowland and high-By the sea-down's edge between windward and

Walled round by the rocks of an inland island A beautiful garden faces the sea." "In conclusion he remineded the brethren of a striking evidence of what their traditions taught them—that monarchs had not thought it derogatory to their dignity to meet with the fraternity and join in their festivities—and then gave the sentiment: 'Long life and health to His Majesty the King.' His Majesty in response said: "Worshiful Master, Brethren and Gentlemen—Allow me to thank you for the to thank you for the kind and cordial man-ner in which you have drunk my health, and for the kindly spirit which you have mani-fested. I am sure that this occasion has established between us more friendly relations than previously existed. The occasion must of necessity be a very pleasant one when we receive such men as the Grand Master and brethren of California. (Applause.) It pleases us much to see the visiting brethren and to give them a fraternal shake of the hand. The event of their visit to the Islands marks an epoch in the history of these Islands in that it gives us greatly to enjoy their company, and we hope during their short stay to do all in our power to make their sojourn a happy one. I will not speak at greater length, as there are seven toasts on the least, but I wish to call upon you to the toast was received with much applause but not responded to owing to the absence through indisposition of His Excel-

The Master next proposed the toast: "California and the Hawaiian Islands—their commercial and fraternal relations."

Senator Whitney answered in a very able manner, thanking the brethren for the hore pitality and kindness shown. He touched on the financial condition of the Hawaiian Kingdom, saying that the imports and exports of the Islands during the last year were between $14,000,000 and $15,000,000; that 94 per cent, of the trade was with the United States, and all but 2 per cent. of that with California. As to tonnage, 60 per cent. of the trade was carried by American vessels. The immigration to these Islands was chiefly from California, and even more Chinamen game to these shores from California than from the Flowery Kingdom itself. (Great laughter.) He regretted the absence of His Excellency, Mr. Merrill, who would, no donbt, have answered more ably. On behalf of the visiting brethren, he thanked His Majesty and the Hawaiian brethren for the hospitality extended to them. (Applause.) "Our Visiting Brethren of the Masonic Excursion" was the next toast proposed.

Bro. T. J. Crowley, P. M., responded in a most humorous and witty manner, and thanked most heartily the Hawaiian brethren for their kindness and hospitality. "Masonry, the Handmaid of Religion," as responded to by Rev. Bro. Mackintosh P. M., who in a very fluent manner proved that, when looked at in a right point of view, religion and Masonry were intimately connected. "The California State Grange, or the Patrons of Husbandry," was responded to by Bro. Senator Wm. Johnson. He explained the working of the Grange, and said that it was an organization formed among the farmers of California, and similar in character to the Boards of Trade in cities, its benefits being even extended to the wives and daughters of the members. "The Pleasures of the Hour" was responded to by Bro. A. F. Judd, P. M., in a most felicitous speech, very humorous, and which was received with great applause. He told the story of a New York broker, who was in the habit of stammering. Having previously lived in Baltimore, it was noticed that he stammered more on going to New York, and he gave as the reason that it was "a b-b-big-ger place." If His Honor did not speak as fluently as in the little building opposite His Majesty's residence, it was because the banquet hall was a b-b-bigger place. "The Legal Fraternity" was answered to by Bro. Powell, of Oakland Lodge No. 188, who, thanking the Hawaiian brethren for their cardial reception, hoped that the Ma-sonic fraternity would have a chance to re-

The last toast, "The Ladies, God Bless Them." was ably responded to by Bro. Barker, who eloquently proved the indebtedness of Masonry to the ladies, by virtue of the happy influence they exert upon the brethren individually. Shortly before midnight the brethren dispersed, singing in full chorus the good old song, "Auld Lang Syne."

His Majesty, on Saturday afternoon, entertained the Masonie Excursionists at a grand luan at Waikiki. A grand spread was set before the guests embracing every variety of native cooked dishes, which were a novelty to most of the visitors. After the luau, a little after dinner speechfying was indulged. Surf sports by natives also formed a part of the afternoon entertainment. The guests returned to town highly pleased with their #### afternoon's outing. The Masonic Ball-

A brilliant ball was given at the Hawaiian Hotel last evening by the Masons of Hono-Islu to M., W., E. C. Atkinson, Grand Master of Masons of California and the Masonic excursion. Upwards of six bundred invitations were issued and a large number of guests was present. The large dining room of the Hotel was tastefully decorated with mottoes, flags and emblems, and the strains of the Hawaiian Band kept the dancers' busy feet tripping it till an early bour in the morn

The guests on entering the room were ceived by Mrs. W. F. Allen and Mrs. W. G. Irwin, the hostesses of the evening, and were then presented to Grand Master and Mrs. Atkinson. Dancing commenced shortly after nine. The night being one of our lovelisst, the verandas were also well filled with non-dancers, who enjoyed the brilliant scene within and the cool soft mounlight without. Supper was served shortly before midnight Credit must be given to the floor managers, Messrs E. D. Tenney and W. F. Graham, to the reception committee and to the organizers of the affair, which must be regarded as a complete success.

gramme was a good one, including "Our Navy." The end men on this occasion were particularly well up in their local hits, most of which were keen as well as witty and were received with raptures of applicase. The singing was excellent and received unbounded applause. The second part commenced with the character songs, "Moriarity" and "1900," by W. G. Armstrong, which had to be repeated. The trapeze act by Mr. E. Le-roy was excellent. The balancing feat, a la Japanese, by Messrs. Low and Armstrong convulsed the audience with laughter. The entertainment closed with the side-splitting local burlesque entified "Our Navy," which was much improved upon in the music from the former exhibition, and many of the characters appeared to much better advantage. Lieutenaut Maikaino and Captain Jackson were perfection, but Mr. Armstrong's rendering of the character of "Holy Moses" was true to nature and could not be improved upon. Mr. Hoogs, as "Sir Joseph," was capupon. Mr. Hoogs, as "Sir Joseph, was cap-ital. Mr. Denevaux as the Envoy, with the song of "The Corkscrew," brought down the house and caffed for an encore, which was complied with. The curtain went down on a smiling sea of faces and the audience dis-persed well pleased with the evening's enter-

Advancement of Civilization.

The citizens of Honolulu are soon to be favored with another adjunct to civilization -which the action of the last remarkable combination in the shape of a burlesque Leg-islature made possible—in the shape of a brewery. A large portion of the machinery, about forty tons, has arrived by the steamship Australia. The new brewery will be erected at Kalihi.

THE LITERARY SOCIETY. EDITOR GAZETTE: The Literary Club, which has been in existence for considerably over a year, still continues, and is a source of great enjoyment and enlightenment to the young people of the town. It is a development of the Shakespeare Club of a couple of years ago, which was managed by ladies, who devoted their attention to an exhaustive study of his plays. Finding it desirable to have a mixture of the male sex and broaden their field of study it was proposed to admit gentlemen and take up the different authors of the past and present, devoting such time to each as their writings would allow or it seem fit to the members. Mrs. Severance freely threw her doors open and invited the club to meet in her parlors every Friday evening, which they most gratefully accepted. She was immediately looked upon as the principal patron of the club and has always devoted a great deal of her time and intelligence to its benefit. The authors whose works have been studied are Lougfellow, Tennyson, Holmes, Dickens, Scott, Holland, Thackeray, Whit-tier, Irving, Bret Harte, Aldrich and Harriet Beecher Stowe. Although in a measure su-perficial, it gives the members such an acquaintance with the author as leads to their seeking greater familiarity with his works. It has served greatly to cultivate the taste for poetry and stimulate the enjoyment of it. It gives them a living acquaintance with the works of the best authors, which carries with it a more exhaustive home study. It has brought to the members' knowledge many beautiful poems and rare bits that might never have reached them. Each member te-ing required at some of its meetings to take some part in the exercises has been the means of drawing in those naturally diffident and giving them confidence. It is a great edu-That it has taken a great hold is easily seen from the intense interest manifested by all and the continuing attendance of all its members. The ordinary order of exercises is three, four or more readings, interspersed with music, a recitation from the authors works, more music and the whole to wind up with a tableau from the author, if possible. During the earlier part of the existence of the club there was exhibited a decidedly matri-monial tendency on the part of its members and it almost appeared as if literature was a secondary consideration; but the craze having worn off from partial exhaustion, for a while at least, the members were again ena-bled to turn their attention to the study of literature for itself. During its existence the club has entertained as guests many distinguished foreigners, including some of poets, prominent scientists and others. In the past the club has given occasional performances, to which the town people were invited, and they have just seen sufficient of its inner life to thoroughly appreciate it and wish the club all manner of success.

DECORATION DAY. Decoration Day was observed with unusual attention this year. Many flags were flying throughout the town. In the afternoon the majority of the American citizens formed a procession and marched to Homolani Cemetery, where the graves of those who had participated in the war and who were buried there were decorated. A part of the exercises of the army posts were conducted by Mr. Noble of G. DeLong Post, Honolulu. There are four veterans buried in the ceme tery. Mr. C. N. Arnold, the Road Inspector, is over in Kau at present building a road across the flow of January last. The flow is four miles wide and on an average fifteen feet high where it crossed the Government road. Dense volumes of steam still rise from the flow and some slight reflection can be seen at

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

A very serious accident occurred at the half-way house between Keauhou and the voi-cino. It seems that Mr. Pogue was out hauling wood, and that while passing over a hillock the load tipped almost to turning over, which forced him to jump. When he struck the ground his feet shot from under him and a stake ran in his body about ten inches. Medical assistance was at once sent for and Dr. Kittredge started at 5 o'clock the same evening, but it would be over twenty-four hours after the accident before he would

A HANDSOME COLLECTION. The administrator of the estate of the late James Mills holds a sale of the stock and effects on Saturday. The deceased had a great passion for the collection of curios, of which he leaves a large lot to be disposed of c sisting of native and foreign cariosities of all kinds. His pet hobby, however, was collecting birds, which he had stuffed and elegantly mounted in glass cases. The collection is quite extensive, containing many very rare and beautiful specimens. He also branched out in an artistic line and leaves behind him a large number of crayon and pastel pictures which will be disposed of. He delighted in marine views, and the majority of his pictures are studies in that line. He has also several of Tavernier's works, among them two volcano scenes, a view in the Redwoods and the Yosemite Falls. Abcuments. Wainaku, June 2, 1887.

The Fire Drill.

The Honoisin Fire Department on Saturday had an experimental drill, under direction of Chief Engineer Wilson. Engine Companies Nos. 1 and 4 were placed at the foot of Emma street, while Nos. 2 and 5 were placed at Emma Square. This drill was intended to illustrate the difference, between the new and the old hydrants. The result was entirely in favor of the new system, the streams reaching a height of 130 feet, notwithstanding a brisk breeza was prevailing at the time; a hydrant test was also had, with favorable results. These was an part embraced a series of tableaux of the comic order, the most laughable being the had, with favorable results. These was an abundance of water, and at one time no less than six streams were playing, without showing any diminution in the supply. A large attendance of citizens were present to witness the exhibition, and all seemed well pleased with the results.

The Blue Ribbon League-

The regular Saturday evening meeting of this Society was hold at Y. M. C. A. Hall, and not with standing several other entertainments the same evening, a good attendance was present, to witness the rendering of the ap-propriate programme, which was a varied one. This being the last eve, that Rev. J. A. Cruzan would be present, it was made the occasion of the League showing its thorough appreciation of the efforts put forth by this gentle-man and his wife in the cause of temperature, by presenting him with a fine painting of Kilauea, in Mr. Jules Tavernier's happiest style. The presentation was made by Rev. H. A. Gowan, President of the League, and was feelingly responded to by Mr. Cruzan, who expressed the hope that the League would prosper and increase its usefulness and members in the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Cruzan carry with them the kind wishes of the League for their future prosperity in the old stamping grounds.

Volcano Excursion-

A number of the Masonic excursionists, who intend returning in the Australia to-day, made arrangements with the Wilder Steamship Company to take a party to the Volcano and return in time to connect with the Australia. Accordingly the Kinau arrived on Friday at noon from her Hilo trip, and after discharging and coaling started early Saturday morning for Keanhou direct, where she probably arrived Sunday morning, giving the visitors all day and Sunday night to take in Madame Pele's dominions. The Kinau would leave Keauhou Monday morning and is due here this morning. This shows what can be done here in the way of excursions to accom-modate visitors, and may have to be repeated again in the near future

On Monday evening, 30th ultimo, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. C. Williams, of Spreckelsville, Maui, were unexpectedly waited upon by a committee of gentlemen, representing the employes of the Hawaiian Commercial and Sugar Company at Spreckelsville, Maui, and were presented with a beautiful silver service as a parting gift, and their niece, Miss Pauline Fyfe, was given a very handsome gold watch and chain, as a memento of her stay at Spreckelsville. On one of the cases containing the silver articles was a silver plate bearing the following inscription:
"Presented to Mr. and Mrs. Geo. C. Williams by the employes of the H. C. & S. Co., spreckelsville, May, 1887." The engraving was neatly executed, showing a border of growing sugar-cane surrounding the inscrip-

On Wednesday evening last, a farnwall party was given in the half at Sprecketsville, when the friends and acquaintances of Mr. and Mrs. Williams came from all parts. By the courtesy of Mr. Lowrie, manager of the Kahulgi Railroad, a train was run from Wailuku to Spreckelsville and back, bringing quite a large company. Dancing was engaged in early in the evening, and was unflargingly kept up by the younger people till near midnight, when an adjournment was made to an excellent repast, prepared in reach there. He found a most dangerous the dining-room adjoining the hall, shortly wound, but gave hopes of his recovery.

Mr. Williams goes to Celifornia to cerrait his health, which has not been robust for some time past, and which necessitated his his resigning his position as manager of Spreckelsville. We hope that, after a short stay in some bracing part of Celifornia, his object may be attained, and that he will rerurn again to these Islands, in these ex-pectations his friends here have hid himself and Mrs. Williams not an affect, but as
